Vienna Is "Hip-Deep" In Occupational and Political Troubles

Rainbow In The Gloom Is Promising Wine - Crop Around Danube Capital

This is another in the Courier's informal reports to the people at home from American correspondents abroad.

"MEMO FROM VIENNA"
By John Flehn
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

Vienna is hip-deep in political and occupation troubles these days, but there is a rainbow in the gloom: the wine crop around the Danube capital and in the adjacent softly undulated province of Lower Austria is promising.

An early and unpleasant fall—there hasn't been any Indian summer at all in Austria this year—had given Viennese to fear there would be nothing to cheer them through a cold, unfriendly, winter.

But now wine-loving Austrians, especially in Vienna, are cheered by reports that the 1952 vintage—although a bit less in quantity—promises to be the best in quality for ages.

In drinking all this wine themselves rather than exporting the precious "juice" of their vineyards spreading from Vienna to all the surrounding country. Viennese used to forget their every-day worries which stem largely from the presence of foreign troops in their

LEVITTOWN, Oct. 30—"An apple for teacher" has been reversed here.

Now it's "An apple for the kids".

And who do you suppose is on the giving end? The answer is—Levittown police.

The apples were from the Bolton Farm, now owned by the Levitt firm.

This morning police had no records of any damage in Levittown.

Desperate Measures Are Required for Escape

Former Prisoner-Slave, A Czech, Concludes His Story on Experiences

Ivan Pluhar is a 25-year-old former Czech student who for two years was forced to work as a prisoner-slave for Russia's atomic bomb program, in a uranium mine. In this article, last of a series, he describes the desperate measures taken by himself and other slaves to escape from a life of medieval horror under Communism. Mr. Pluhar's story, the first personal-experience account of its kind, was obtained with the aid and cooperation of the International Rescue Committee in New York.

By Ivan Pluhar
(Written expressly for INS)

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 — (INS) — Seven of us escaped from the Joachmystal uranium prison-mine in Communist Czechoslovakia at midnight, Sept. 17, 1951—thanks to 3½ months of digging, a very alert prison guard, and some bad tobacco.

We dug our escape shaft deep in the uranium mine, some of us working on the escape tunnel while the others worked even harder to make sure the crew's normal quota of uranium ore was filled.

Deep down in the mine, we found

THE STATE CANDIDATES

Overlooked by many citizens is the fact that two important state offices are to be filled as part of the election next Tuesday, the main excitement of which revolves around the presidential contest.

These two offices are the two chief fiscal positions, the two "watchdogs of the treasury", Auditor General and State Treasurer.

As for the contest in these two posts, the Republican candidates are outstanding, for they are the two men on the ballot who have had experience—and successful experience—in the matter of seeing that state funds are honestly collected and properly expended.

The two are:

Weldon B. Heyburn, a dairy farmer from Delaware county, who is completing a four-year term as Auditor General, and has been nominated for the quite similar duties of State Treasurer. Mr. Heyburn was formerly a state senator, at one time Republican floor leader.

Charles R. Barber, formerly mayor of Erie for three terms, who is rounding out a four-year term as State Treasurer and has been nominated for Auditor General. Like Mr. Heyburn, Mr. Barber's record in the statewide office dealing with these financial affairs is excellent.

Both these men deserve the full support of all Pennsylvanians who are interested in keeping men of ability and integrity in public office, and they especially merit the enthusiastic backing of all Republicans, to whose party they have brought much credit.

Also on the statewide Republican ticket this fall is:

Judge John C. Arnold, member of the State Superior Court who has been nominated for election to the State Supreme Court. Judge Arnold comes from Clearfield where he practiced law with much success, earning many distinctions. His record as Superior Court Judge is beyond criticism.

The way to be sure that your vote is given to these and to all other of the outstanding candidates who make up the Republican ticket is not to try to check each of their names individually on the ballot next Tuesday, but to vote straight Republican.

Be sure you vote, and when you get your ballot, look for the word REPUBLICAN and place an "X" after it, thus:

REPUBLICAN | X

Most Children Not Ready To Read Until 6½ Years

So States Dr. Morton Botel In Addressing Newtown Boro' PTA Group

NEWTOWN, Oct. 30—Dr. Morton Botel, reading consultant for Bucks Co. department of education, addressed members of Newtown borough elementary Parent-Teacher Association, Monday evening, in Council Rock high school.

Dr. Botel stated children six years of age are not ready to profit by reading, and with today's ruling, many children enter school before they are six. "Mental factors are most important in helping the teacher to know when the child is ready to read, and most children are not ready until at least 6½ years of age. Children should only be launched in reading when they are socially, mentally and physically ready. Pictures may play an important part in this subject, as do drawing and games. Girls read six months in advance of boys," stated Dr. Botle, "until the age of ten, then boys catch up."

The meeting was opened by invo-

Commutation Tickets To Be Sold for Bridge

A Book of 25 Tiickets Will Be Offered for Sale On Saturday

Beginning Saturday, commutation tickets will be sold on the Burlington-Bristol bridge.

Leo Schaeffer, general manager of that span and the Tacony-Palmyra bridge, announced that a book of 25 tickets will cost $5, a saving of $1.25.

The tickets, he added, must be used within 30 days after the date of purchase.

A similar commutation rate has been in effect on the Tacony-Palmyra span evere since the two bridges were acquired by the Burlington County Bridge Commission.

The commutation tickets may be purchased at the toll booths on either span, Schaeffer said, and may be used for passage over both crossings. The regular fare on the bridges is 25 cents.

The bridge commission decided to put the commutation rate into effect, Schaeffer added, due to the record-breaking traffic and revenue marks set on the spans under county ownership.

The lifeless body of a man found at the "point" at the rear of Mill street, along the Delaware river and near the borough parking lot this morning at 9.50, was identified by police as that of John McCary. No address is listed for McCary, who is said to be about 50 years of age.

McCary's body was discovered by James Carney, of 809 Pine street, who informed police that he had gone to Mill street to see a friend, who was not at home, so Carney continued on, walking down to the "point". Frank Indelicato Convicted on Two Counts As Result of Stabbing Affray Here Last June; Committed to Prison Awaiting Bail

Jury Out 2½ Hours — Convicts Bristol Man of Assault and Battery, Aggravated Assault and Battery — Sustains Demurrer on A. and B. with Attempt to Kill

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 30 — A jury in Bucks County criminal court yesterday convicted a Bristol man, Frank Indelicato, on two counts, he having been arrested following the alleged stabbing of his divorced wife and the latter's husband.

Indelicato was convicted of aggravated assault and battery, and assault and battery. The court sustained a demurrer on charge of assault and battery with attempt to kill. No sentence was pronounced.

J. Leslie Kilcoyne, Esq., attorney for the defense, made a motion for a new trial. Bail was set at $2,000, and pending furnishing of such Indelicato was committed to the county prison.

The jury, which had been out 2½ hours, returned at five o'clock.

On the witness stand Indelicato stated that the reason he had gone to the home of his former wife, Mrs. Ion Tresco, 35, on June 7th was to see his two sons, and to talk over the division of money which he and Mrs. Tresco had saved during their 16 years of marriage.

The two sons, aged 15 and 12, had witnessed the stabbing of their mother and step-father in the living room of their apartment at 329 Lincoln avenue, Bristol, the early evening of June 7th, it had been stated at the time.

It had been stated by Chief of Bristol Police, Linford J. Jones, at the time of the affray, that Indelicato and Tresco engaged in an argument which ended in a fight. An ordinary sized penknife was the instrument used, it was claimed. The knife punctured Mrs. Tresco's abdomen; and Tresco was cut about the face and stomach.

The two sons informed police that their mother and father had had some discussion over money due for the boys' support, adding he was five weeks behind in payments for a total of $100. The boys told officers that their father walked into the Tresco apartment June 7th, told the family to sit down, that he had something to tell them. After an argument there was a scuffle, they state, and the stabbing resulted. It was added that Frank, the younger son, took the knife from Indelicato; and the older boy, Joseph, summoned aid.

The two-day bloodmobile visit to the Kaiser Metal Products Company was termed a "huge success" by Mrs. Dean Weidmer, Bristol district blood chairman, who was in charge of the operation. This visit took place at the Mutual Aid Society Building, use of which was donated by its members.

Mrs. Adolph Ancker, Lower Bucks County Blood Chairman, said: "We appreciate the invitation extended us by S. D. Hackley, vice-president and general manager, to visit the plant. The co-operation which was extended by Fred Bechill and Ralph Collett, assistant general managers; Carter Grant, director of industrial relations; A. W. Peterson, personnel manager, who did such a fine recruiting job; and John Dougherty, president of Local No. 130, UAW-CIO, was responsible for the unprecedented success of this visit."

"Kaiser employees who donated blood were paid for time lost during their regular working hours. This is an indication of the high esteem held by the Kaiser organization for the blood donor program," said Peterson.

Desperate Measures Are Required for Escape

Former Prisoner-Slave, A Czech, Concludes His Story on Experiences

Ivan Pluhar is a 25-year-old former Czech student who for two years was forced to work as a prisoner-slave for Russia's atomic bomb program, in a uranium mine. In this article, last of a series, he describes the desperate measures taken by himself and other slaves to escape from a life of medieval horror under Communism. Mr. Pluhar's story, the first personal-experience account of its kind, was obtained with the aid and cooperation of the International Rescue Committee in New York.

By Ivan Pluhar
(Written expressly for INS)

NEW YORK, Oct. 30 — (INS) — Seven of us escaped from the Joachmystal uranium prison-mine in Communist Czechoslovakia at midnight Sept. 17, 1951—thanks to 3½ months of digging, a very alert prison guard, and some bad tobacco.

We dug our escape shaft deep in the uranium mine, some of us working on the escape tunnel while the others worked even harder to make sure the crew's normal quota of uranium ore was filled.

Deep down in the mine, we found

THE STATE CANDIDATES

Overlooked by many citizens is the fact that two important state offices are to be filled as part of the election next Tuesday, the main excitement of which revolves around the presidential contest.

These two offices are the two chief fiscal positions, the two "watchdogs of the treasury", Auditor General and State Treasurer.

As for the contest in these two posts, the Republican candidates are outstanding, for they are the two men on the ballot who have had experience—and successful experience—in the matter of seeing that state funds are honestly collected and properly expended.

The two are:

Weldon B. Heyburn, a dairy farmer from Delaware county, who is completing a four-year term as Auditor General, and has been nominated for the quite similar duties of State Treasurer. Mr. Heyburn was formerly a state senator, at one time Republican floor leader.

Charles R. Barber, formerly mayor of Erie for three terms, who is rounding out a four-year term as State Treasurer and has been nominated for Auditor General. Like Mr. Heyburn, Mr. Barber's record in the statewide office dealing with these financial affairs is excellent.

Both these men deserve the full support of all Pennsylvanians who are interested in keeping men of ability and integrity in public office, and they especially merit the enthusiastic backing of all Republicans, to whose party they have brought much credit.

Also on the statewide Republican ticket this fall is:

Judge John C. Arnold, member of the State Superior Court who has been nominated for election to the State Supreme Court. Judge Arnold comes from Clearfield where he practiced law with much success, earning many distinctions. His record as Superior Court Judge is beyond criticism.

The way to be sure that your vote is given to these and to all other of the outstanding candidates who make up the Republican ticket is not to try to check each of their names individually on the ballot next Tuesday, but to vote straight Republican.

Be sure you vote, and when you get your ballot, look for the word REPUBLICAN and place an "X" after it, thus:

REPUBLICAN | X

Most Children Not Ready To Read Until 6½ Years

So States Dr. Morton Botel In Addressing Newtown Boro' PTA Group

NEWTOWN, Oct. 30—Dr. Morton Botel, reading consultant for Bucks Co. department of education, addressed members of Newtown borough elementary Parent-Teacher Association, Monday evening, in Council Rock high school.

Dr. Botel stated children six years of age are not ready to profit by reading, and with today's ruling, many children enter school before they are six. "Mental factors are most important in helping the teacher to know when the child is ready to read, and most children are not ready until at least 6½ years of age. Children should only be launched in reading when they are socially, mentally and physically ready. Pictures may play an important part in this subject, as do drawing and games. Girls read six months in advance of boys," stated Dr. Botle, "until the age of ten, then boys catch up."

The meeting was opened by invo-

Commutation Tickets To Be Sold for Bridge

A Book of 25 Tiickets Will Be Offered for Sale On Saturday

Beginning Saturday, commutation tickets will be sold on the Burlington-Bristol bridge.

Leo Schaeffer, general manager of that span and the Tacony-Palmyra bridge, announced that a book of 25 tickets will cost $5, a saving of $1.25.

The tickets, he added, must be used within 30 days after the date of purchase.

A similar commutation rate has been in effect on the Tacony-Palmyra span evere since the two bridges were acquired by the Burlington County Bridge Commission.

The commutation tickets may be purchased at the toll booths on either span, Schaeffer said, and may be used for passage over both crossings. The regular fare on the bridges is 25 cents.

The bridge commission decided to put the commutation rate into effect, Schaeffer added, due to the record-breaking traffic and revenue marks set on the spans under county ownership.

John McCary Found Dead at "The Point"

The lifeless body of a man found at the "point" at the rear of Mill street, along the Delaware river and near the borough parking lot this morning at 9.50, was identified by police as that of John McCary. No address is listed for McCary, who is said to be about 50 years of age.

McCary's body was discovered by James Carney, of 809 Pine street, who informed police that he had gone to Mill street to see a friend, who was not at home, so Carney continued on, walking down to the "point". Seeing a man lying there, Carney went to Mill street and informed Officer Spinelli who was collecting coins from parking meters, adding that he thought the man was ill.

Spinelli and Officer Vanzant went to the spot and found McCary lying on the ground, his head resting on a willow tree. Nearby were some camp cooking facilities used by a group of men.

McCary had apparently been dead but a short time, it is stated.

At the time McCary was wearing a shirt, trousers, socks and shoes, but no underclothing, in spite of the fact temperature a short time before was in the low forties. A jacket lay nearby.

McCary was pronounced dead at 10.15 by Dr. Wm. Goldfarb, deputy coroner of Bucks county. Dr. Goldfarb set time of death as between six and nine a. m. Further examination is to be conducted by him.

Lawrence Westbrook, one of his top assistants, because of Westbrook's connection with a tungsten contract cancelled Monday by the government.

Frank Indelicato Convicted on Two Counts As Result of Stabbing Affray Here Last June; Committed to Prison Awaiting Bail

Jury Out 2½ Hours — Convicts Bristol Man of Assault and Battery, Aggravated Assault and Battery — Sustains Demurrer on A. and B. with Attempt to Kill

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 30 — A jury in Bucks County criminal court yesterday convicted a Bristol man, Frank Indelicato, on two counts, he having been arrested following the alleged stabbing of his divorced wife and the latter's husband.

Indelicato was convicted of aggravated assault and battery, and assault and battery. The court sustained a demurrer on charge of assault and battery with attempt to kill. No sentence was pronounced.

J. Leslie Kilcoyne, Esq., attorney for the defense, made a motion for a new trial. Bail was set at $2,000, and pending furnishing of such Indelicato was committed to the county prison.

The jury, which had been out 2½ hours, returned at five o'clock.

On the witness stand Indelicato stated that the reason he had gone to the home of his former wife, Mrs. Ion Tresco, 35, on June 7th was to see his two sons, and to talk over the division of money which he and Mrs. Tresco had saved during their 16 years of marriage.

The two sons, aged 15 and 12, had witnessed the stabbing of their mother and step-father in the living room of their apartment at 329 Lincoln avenue, Bristol, the early evening of June 7th, it had been stated at the time.

It had been stated by Chief of Bristol Police, Linford J. Jones, at the time of the affray, that Indelicato and Tresco engaged in an argument which ended in a fight. An ordinary sized penknife was the instrument used, it was claimed. The knife punctured Mrs. Tresco's abdomen; and Tresco was cut about the face and stomach.

The two sons informed police that their mother and father had had some discussion over money due for the boys' support, adding he was five weeks behind in payments for a total of $100. The boys told officers that their father walked into the Tresco apartment June 7th, told the family to sit down, that he had something to tell them. After an argument there was a scuffle, they state, and the stabbing resulted. It was added that Frank, the younger son, took the knife from Indelicato; and the older boy, Joseph, summoned aid.

Kaiser Employees Give 284 Pints of Blood in Two Days

The two-day bloodmobile visit to the Kaiser Metal Products Company was termed a "huge success" by Mrs. Dean Weidmer, Bristol district blood chairman, who was in charge of the operation. This visit took place at the Mutual Aid Society Building, use of which was donated by its members.

The previous high of 138 pints of blood in a single day was shattered by Kaiser employees, who established a new one-day record of 159 pints, making a total of 284 pints for the two-day visit.

Mrs. Adolph Ancker, Lower Bucks County Blood Chairman, said: "We appreciate the invitation extended us by S. D. Hackley, vice-president and general manager, to visit the plant. The co-operation which was extended by Fred Bechill and Ralph Collett, assistant general managers; Carter Grant, director of industrial relations; A. W. Peterson, personnel manager, who did such a fine recruiting job; and John Dougherty, president of Local No. 130, UAW-CIO, was responsible for the unprecedented success of this visit."

"Kaiser employees who donated blood were paid for time lost during their regular working hours. This is an indication of the high esteem held by the Kaiser organization for the blood donor program," said Peterson.

GETTING THE BEST

Reports from 507 institutions show that the downward trend in college enrollment has been checked by an increase in freshmen this fall. As concerns the independent, privately maintained colleges, this is not an unmitigated blessing at a time when endowments are hard to come by and appeals have to be made to alumni of many for pledges of annual support.

From an anonymous donor Dartmouth College has received a gift of $1,000,000, announced at a convocation marking the centenary of the death of Daniel Webster, graduate of the class of 1801. With it will be established 20 scholarships for incoming freshmen of deserving records from all parts of the country. The recipients will be fittingly known as Webster Scholars.

For the privately maintained colleges the problem is not one of getting more students but of getting better ones, who in the passage of years will do them honor. These colleges want to train men of "first quality," be they rich or poor, in student bodies that are representative of the country as a whole.

NOVEMBER

Poets have never given November its due. Spring, summer, winter all have been immortalized in verse, and so has autumn, but the poetic autumn usually referred to occurs in October. In fact, October is given more than its share of mention in prose and verse.

But November days and nights pack more of the real spirit of autumn than those of the preceding month, poets to the contrary notwithstanding. In northern climes, November brings the first real taste of winter, with touches of snow and temperatures that can not be ignored. November makes itself felt.

In the South, too, November is one of the year's most important months. The great winter resort areas of the South begin to be overrun by escapees of the north's icy blasts in November, and from this month until spring the South's glorious climate is at its best.

America has spent $3,000,000,000 on new schools and churches since 1945. That sounds impressive until someone bobs up with the figures on bubble gum.

Letters To The Editor

Editor Courier:

I will not support the movement for first class towshinp this election, Nov. 4, 1952. I wish to make it known that I believe first class township is a good thing, but Bensalem Township is not ready for it in 1952. However I do believe we should get ready for a change to something better than we have in the way of "government for the people," but let us know first more about it.

The number one gripe with the people is the manner in which the supervisors conduct their closed meetings. If a representative from the different township civic groups were invited to attend all of the supervisor's board meetings I believe the taxpayers would be a more contented people. I wage our supervisors to support and announce such a plan before election, Nov. 4, 1952. The people are desperate for civic knowledge and can gain this point by voting for first class township, although they may pay a bitter price for lack of information and experience. A person getting elected to public office and then ignoring the taxpayers for the duration is a thing of the past.

If one of our neighboring municipalities was trying to annex a part of Bensalem Township we may be forced to vote for first class township quickly to defend ourselves, but this is not the case.

I wage the people of Bensalem Township to vote "No" on the issue of first class township election day Tuesday Nov. 4, 1952.

Editor Courier:

Bensalem voters are asked to consider very carefully before voting for a first class township in the November 4th election. If you are tax wise, you will realize that five commissioners, an assessor, assistant assessor, three auditors and a treasurer must be paid a very substantial wage. Who pays their wages? You as a taxpayer. Therefore you will be called upon for more taxes to defray this cost.

Homebuilders should consider their problems too. In a first class township you will have to submit building plans which will have to be approved by the commissioners. You will have to have a permit for every minor repair on your home. The plumbing, wiring, etc. that you are now permitted to do yourself will have to be contracted out to registered plumbers and electricians. First class township will regulate the size and construction of your home. Attention is called to an article in the Bristol Courier of Sept. 19th, where commissioners in a first class township gave a property owner eight hours to tear down his home because it was not constructed according to the township building code. This could happen to you in a first class township. Second class township feels that a man's home is his castle and that he should be entitled to live in it without fear that a knock on the door would be to tell him to raze his home because the commissioners did not approve of it.

In a second class township you have three commissioners that can be voted out of office if their job is not well done. You cannot vote a man out of an appointed office.

Community groups are fine and taxpayer groups can be a fine thing too, when they decide to work for the benefit of all the people instead of feathering the nest of a selected few.

Stop and think carefully before you cast your vote for this issue. It is very vital to you, as a home owner, to know what you are voting for. Don't let your rights be taken away from you by a careless vote.

Given 3-Year Jail Term than two years with that sentence to begin at the expiration of the three to six year term.

Following sentence, Judge Keller told Hines: "You have a terrible record. You are a smoothie, slick and clever. But you had an intelligent jury and they saw through you and your perjury."

Hines, a former barber and taxicab driver, was arrested by F. B. I. agents in Los Angeles, Calif., May 14 ,1952, and returned to Bucks County Prison Aug. 11, 1952.

He escaped from county prison here two years ago, Sept. 10, 1950, with Robert Mitchell, of Perkasie, by scaling a wall. They hid in a water ditch until dark and then went to Cross Keys and separated. Mitchell went to Trenton, N. J., but later returned here and gave himself up.

Members of the 3-M plant protection force, and state and county police officers testified against Hines on behalf of the state. His alleged partner, William J. Conray, 26, also testified.

William Williams, 37, a guard at the plant, said that at midnight April 11, 1950, he saw some 50 boxes of masking tape on a railroad platform, and heard a car drive away. Williams said he immediately called a superior officer.

Robert L. O'Neal, 54, of Cornwells Manor, chief of the plant protection force, testified that he found 47 boxes of tape, valued at $564, on the platform. On further investigation he discovered an automobile license tag, mounted on a bumper, on the plant property, he said.

The license belonged to Hines' stepfather, Ray W. Mutchler, Burlington, it was testified by Trooper William Arner, 35, of Langhorne State Police Station. The trooper said Hines, already a prison parolee, was unable to own a car at the time, so he purchased the auto in Phila. in his stepfather's name, without the parent's knowledge.

Bristol twp. Police Chief Joseph O. Seader aided in the investigation.

Conray is serving a term in Graterford Branch of Eastern State Penitentiary as a partner in the attemtped theft. He implicated Hines in the crime, Chief County Detective Frederick H. Kohler said, but Hines insisted he was framed.

Conray, heavily guarded, made the following testimony:

"Donald Hines and I made arrangements to take masking tape from the Minnesota Mining Company. I was instrumental in getting hi ma job there, but he quit and I kept on being employed.

"I finished work about 12 o'clock, April 11, at night and Donald Hines was waiting for me with his truck. We drove around to the back of the plant. We used the truck to jump over the high wire fence. We went to the plant at the railroad dock, and moved the tape to the platform. We were getting ready to put the tape over the fence when a guard came along. We ran into the darkness, watched the guard go into the plant, then took off across the field. We both jumped the fence, it was easier from the inside because the barbed wire apron at the top extended outwards and not inwards. Don ran for the truck and I jumped over the fence at another spot. He met me farther down the road and we went back to Burlington.

"It was Don's idea that we take the tape. He approached me and said, 'Have you ever thought of making a little easy money by selling some of that tape?' I was badly in debt and thought we could get away with it. I needed money.

"I left Donald Hines about 2 that morning in a cafe. He lived above the taproom or cafe. Donald called me at 10 o'clock next morning and said that one of the license tags was missing.

"I said, 'What do you want me to do about it,' and hung up," said Conray.

Conray is married and the father of two children.

Hines, charged with burglary, larceny and receiving stolen goods, took the witness stand late yesterday afternoon and denied that he was with William Conray that evening.

"I was in my apartment, went down to the bar, shot darts, had a few beers and went upstairs again to watch television.

He said his wife was divorced from him since his trouble.

GETTING THE BEST

Reports from 507 institutions show that the downward trend in college enrollment has been checked by an increase in freshmen this fall. As concerns the independent, privately maintained colleges, this is not an unmitigated blessing at a time when endowments are hard to come by and appeals have to be made to alumni of many for pledges of annual support.

From an anonymous donor Dartmouth College has received a gift of $1,000,000, announced at a convocation marking the centenary of the death of Daniel Webster, graduate of the class of 1801. With it will be established 20 scholarships for incoming freshmen of deserving records from all parts of the country. The recipients will be fittingly known as Webster Scholars.

For the privately maintained colleges the problem is not one of getting more students but of getting better ones, who in the passage of years will do them honor. These colleges want to train men of "first quality," be they rich or poor, in student bodies that are representative of the country as a whole.

NOVEMBER

Poets have never given November its due. Spring, summer, winter all have been immortalized in verse, and so has autumn, but the poetic autumn usually referred to occurs in October. In fact, October is given more than its share of mention in prose and verse.

But November days and nights pack more of the real spirit of autumn than those of the preceding month, poets to the contrary notwithstanding. In northern climes, November brings the first real taste of winter, with touches of snow and temperatures that can not be ignored. November makes itself felt.

In the South, too, November is one of the year's most important months. The great winter resort areas of the South begin to be overrun by escapees of the north's icy blasts in November, and from this month until spring the South's glorious climate is at its best.

America has spent $3,000,000,000 on new schools and churches since 1945. That sounds impressive until someone bobs up with the figures on bubble gum.

Letters To The Editor

Editor Courier:

I will not support the movement for first class township this election, Nov. 4, 1952. I wish to make it known that I believe first class township is a good thing, but Bensalem Township is not ready for it in 1952. However I do believe we should get ready for a change to something better than we have in the way of "government for the people," but let us know first more about it.

The number one gripe with the people is the manner in which the supervisors conduct their closed meetings. If a representative from the different township civic groups were invited to attend all of the supervisor's board meetings I believe the taxpayers would be a more contented people. I wage our supervisors to support and announce such a plan before election, Nov. 4, 1952. Pleads Guilty to Operating defendant. The Commonwealth's case was handled by District Attorney Donald W. Vanartsdalen.

Bidlingmaier has been in the Bucks County Prison since his arrest on July 22, and Judge Satterthwaite gave him a sentence which calls for an additional month in jail and a probationary period of 21 months. The court said that an application for parole would be considered a month from now, if the prisoner's behavior in jail was satisfactory.

The sentences imposed was three months to one year from the time of committment last July, on the drunken driving charge, and one month to nine months on the charge of operating the truck without the consent of the owner, the sentences to run consecutively. The defendant was also directed to pay the costs.

The prosecutor Cook testified that one of his trucks was taken without his permission on July 22, at night, by the defendant and that Bristol police arrested Bidlingmaier about two miles from the prosecutor's shop in Emilie.

Patrolman Henry Spinelli, of the Bristol police, said he arrested the defendant at 3:45 in the morning after he followed the truck along the highway, with the driver operating in a zig-zagged manner and without lights on the truck.

"Bidlingmaier told me that he was on his way home with the truck so that he could start out early in the morning to work," Patrolman Spinelli testified. The defendant at that time was no longer employed by Cook.

The officer informed the court that the defendant was intoxicated in his opinion at the time of the arrest, and that a Bristol physician also examined the defendant and was of the same opinion.

"We had dealt with Bidlingamier before," Patrolman Spinelli continued. "He has come to our police station on several occasions and demanded to be locked up".

The defendant on the witness stand, told the court that he "borrowed the truck". He admitted that he had been drinking all afternoon and most of the night on July 22.

When Judge Satterthwaite asked Bidlingmaier what his drinking habits were, the defendant then said, "he drank nothing but beer" and that he did go to the police station for night quarters when he knew that he "couldn't make it home." It was then that he told the court that he didn't know it was a crime to drive while drunk.

The defendant had never been in trouble before—at least in court.

"Your previous clean record saved you a more severe sentence", Judge Satterthwaite remarked to the defendant. "The court is not entirely satisfied with your story, and you should have a little longer to serve".

terested in the work of the Lower Southampton PTA and he served in that group for many years. The organization took the steps necessary to make him a life member of the national PTA.

Recognition of his work on the PTA earned him an appointment on the Lower Southampton School Board. He is presently in his third term as a director on that board. He has served in the capacity of president of that board and when elected to the Neshaminy Joint Board he stepped down to the office of vice-president of the Lower Southampton Board because of his increased activities with the joint board.

Paul completed Kenneth Comly's unexpired term as vice-president of the joint board last year, and this year was elected president of the board.

He has served on the advisory council to the county board of directors. His appointment as a county director is to finish Kenneth Comly's unexpired term with that body.

Paul is also active in church affairs. He served two years as a deacon of the Feasterville Community Church. He is now an elder of the church.

Paul, who is married, is 49 years of age; he has three children: John Richard, Barbara Jean (now married), and Nancy Patricia who is presently in the sixth grade at the Lower Southampton Elementary school.

Pleads Guilty to Operating defendant. The Commonwealth's case was handled by District Attorney Donald W. Vanartsdalen.

Bidlingmaier has been in the Bucks County Prison since his arrest on July 22, and Judge Satterthwaite gave him a sentence which calls for an additional month in jail and a probationary period of 21 months. The court said that an application for parole would be considered a month from now, if the prisoner's behavior in jail was satisfactory.

The sentences imposed was three months to one year from the time of committment last July, on the drunken driving charge, and one month to nine months on the charge of operating the truck without the consent of the owner, the sentences to run consecutively. The defendant was also directed to pay the costs.

The prosecutor Cook testified that one of his trucks was taken without his permission on July 22, at night, by the defendant and that Bristol police arrested Bidlingmaier about two miles from the prosecutor's shop in Emilie.

Patrolman Henry Spinelli, of the Bristol police, said he arrested the defendant at 3:45 in the morning after he followed the truck along the highway, with the driver operating in a zig-zagged manner and without lights on the truck.

"Bidlingmaier told me that he was on his way home with the truck so that he could start out early in the morning to work," Patrolman Spinelli testified. The defendant at that time was no longer employed by Cook.

The officer informed the court that the defendant was intoxicated in his opinion at the time of the arrest, and that a Bristol physician also examined the defendant and was of the same opinion.

"We had dealt with Bidlingamier before," Patrolman Spinelli continued. "He has come to our police station on several occasions and demanded to be locked up".

The defendant on the witness stand, told the court that he "borrowed the truck". He admitted that he had been drinking all afternoon and most of the night on July 22.

When Judge Satterthwaite asked Bidlingmaier what his drinking habits were, the defendant then said, "he drank nothing but beer" and that he did go to the police station for night quarters when he knew that he "couldn't make it home." It was then that he told the court that he didn't know it was a crime to drive while drunk.

The defendant had never been in trouble before—at least in court.

"Your previous clean record saved you a more severe sentence", Judge Satterthwaite remarked to the defendant. "The court is not entirely satisfied with your story, and you should have a little longer to serve".

terested in the work of the Lower Southampton PTA and he served in that group for many years. The organization took the steps necessary to make him a life member of the national PTA.

Recognition of his work on the PTA earned him an appointment on the Lower Southampton School Board. He is presently in his third term as a director on that board. He has served in the capacity of president of that board and when elected to the Neshaminy Joint Board he stepped down to the office of vice-president of the Lower Southampton Board because of his increased activities with the joint board.

Paul completed Kenneth Comly's unexpired term as vice-president of the joint board last year, and this year was elected president of the board.

He has served on the advisory council to the county board of directors. His appointment as a county director is to finish Kenneth Comly's unexpired term with that body.

Paul is also active in church affairs. He served two years as a deacon of the Feasterville Community Church. He is now an elder of the church.

Paul, who is married, is 49 years of age; he has three children: John Richard, Barbara Jean (now married), and Nancy Patricia who is presently in the sixth grade at the Lower Southampton Elementary school.

Desperate Measures

an iron gate equipped with a heavy lock. We molded a mixture of bread and soap, and used it to take an impression of the lock. From the impression, we fashioned a key, made from a bit of steel we snipped from a shovel.

We opened the gate—and found an abandoned working, half filled with earth and broken rock. We set to work digging a new shaft up to the 50-meter level. Now we found an abandoned shaft leading to the surface—outside the stockade!

We started to work clearing out this shaft, and found that its mouth was covered by a large pile of rock, broken cement and dirt. We saw at once what would happen—the more we cleared the shaft, the more the pile of rock and earth covering the mouth would be jarred. Finally, it would start to sink. And the guards would discover our plan of escape.

We talked it over. Finally, one of us went over to one of the most vigilant guards in the camp. "Look at that pile," he said. "It covers the mouth of an old shaft, and it's outside the stockade. Who knows, somebody might try to escape through it."

The guard thought about that. "Here's what should be done," our man went on. "The pile ought to be moved away. Then you ought to close the mouth of the shaft with a heavy slab of concrete, and then replace the pile."

"You're right," the guard agreed, and he relayed the tip to a superior, who praised him for his vigilance. In due time, the shaft was sealed with a concrete slab 3½ inches thick. The pile was replaced on top of it.

And our man was rewarded with extra rations for two days!

Now we could work in comparative peace and safety. We cleared the shaft and by-passed the cement with a small tunnel. To conceal the mouth of this new exit, we merely had to widen the pile slightly from time to time.

As we got closer and closer to the mouth of the shaft, another problem began to worry us.

That was the dogs that often accompanied the guards in their rounds. Their senses of smell were acute.

Then we got an idea. We lined the area just beneath the mouth of the escape shaft with what we had saved from our meager rations of tobacco. The prisoners had a phrase for the camp tobacco—we called it "the anger of Stalin," because it was so bad.

And we made sure the tobacco was wet. That outwitted the noses of the dogs.

In the last days of the digging, we saved a little bread, but not enough to be bulky or suspicious. If the guards were to find any hoarded food or supplies, they automatically suspected an escape plot.

Finally the time was ready to escape. We entered the mine for the night shift, as usual. At midnight, seven of us came silently up through the earth outside the barbed wire and moved into the thick forest beyond.

I was the first man out of the shaft, and I helped the others out. We did not wait even a moment to think of our remarkable feat, emerging from a specially-built shaft in a mine where even the main tunnel was a terrible menace to the men who worked it—filled with falling rocks, explosions, fires and poisonous gases.

Our escape still lay ahead of us.

We had no compass. Our food consisted of a bit more than four pounds of bread per man. When we needed water, we drank from brooks.

For eight days and eight nights, we traveled—hiding by day, plodding through thick forests and farm land at night. We stayed off the roads.

I have been asked what we talked about. The answer is: We did not talk.

Crossing the border was the most difficult. We spread out, and one of our number did not rejoin us. He was either captured or shot by Russian border guards.

After eight days, we reached the American zone of Germany, near the town of Hof.

We were given American suits, shoes, socks and shirts. Two of our number decided they would try to enlist in the U. S. Army. I awaited my turn to come to the United States under the President's escape program.

What we did—our escape—could not have been done by men in civilian life. That is not a boast. It is just the truth.

You need practice—practice in a Communist prison.

In the last days of the digging, we saved a little bread, but not enough to be bulky or suspicious. If the guards were to find any hoarded food or supplies, they automatically suspected an escape plot.

Finally the time was ready to escape. We entered the mine for the night shift, as usual. At midnight, seven of us came silently up through the earth outside the barbed wire and moved into the thick forest beyond.

I was the first man out of the shaft, and I helped the others out. We did not wait even a moment to think of our remarkable feat, emerging from a specially-built shaft in a mine where even the main tunnel was a terrible menace to the men who worked it—filled with falling rocks, explosions, fires and poisonous gases.

Our escape still lay ahead of us. We had no compass. Our food consisted of a bit more than four pounds of bread per man. When we needed water, we drank from brooks.

For eight days and eight nights, we traveled—hiding by day, plodding through thick forests and farm land at night. We stayed off the roads.

I have been asked what we talked about. The answer is: We did not talk.

Crossing the border was the most difficult. We spread out, and one of our number did not rejoin us. He was either captured or shot by Russian border guards.

After eight days, we reached the American zone of Germany, near the town of Hof.

We were given American suits, shoes, socks and shirts. Two of our number decided they would try to enlist in the U. S. Army. I awaited my turn to come to the United States under the President's escape program.

What we did—our escape—could not have been done by men in civilian life. That is not a boast. It is just the truth.

You need practice—practice in a Communist prison.

Expanded Program Will Benefit Free Asia

Predictions Made U. S. Will Continue Improving Basic Policies

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—(INS)—Diplomatic observers are convinced that, regardless of the outcome of U. S. elections, there will be continued improvement in basic policies governing American-Asian relations.

Both presidential candidates Gov. Adlai Stevenson and Dwight Eisenhower, have already shown that they are committed to positive and expanding U. S. programs in the Far East.

And any programs which operate to the benefit of free Asia not only will contribute to the entire region, but to each specific country, within the region.

As examples of the attitudes of the two candidates towards Asia, observers recall a press statement by Eisenhower shortly before his nomination as the Republican candidate.

At that time he favored strengthening Pacific defenses to the hilt.

In his widely-publicized foreign policy speech in San Francisco recently, the Democratic standard bearer, Stevenson, advocated a new potent emphasis by the U. S. regarding Asia.

In addition to their general interests in Asia, both candidates have close friendship ties with the Philippines.

Eisenhower once served in the Philippines, and is credited as one of the architects of the Philippine national defense scheme which proved so effective in the delaying actions waged by the Filipino-American forces on Bataan and Corregidor.

Stevenson is a long-time personal friend of Philippine Ambassador Carlos P. Romulo, one of free Asia's most voluble spokemen in the United States.

Such personal ties with an Asian country are unique among U. S. presidential candidates, and observers feel this will be significant in keeping the attention of either one as President focused on the extreme significance of Asia in world affairs.

Only few Americans share the Austrian point of view, as far as wine is concerned. Viennese say "it all depends with Americans;" if they get used to drinking wine, they like it and they like it a lot. Most of the U. S. personnel serving with the State Department or the Army over here don't believe in Austrian wine and prefer a Scotch, Bourbon, Martini or an Old-Fashioned.

The Russians like everything that smells of alcohol. There is a lot of that in this year's wine.

Parto Brothers Important To Levittown Development

Three Sons of Joseph Parto Serve on Tullytown Police; Three Are Constructors

By Staff Reporter

LEVITTOWN, Oct. 30 — Where would Levittown be without the Parto brothers?

Three sons of Joseph Parto, of Tullytown, protect this housing development as members of the Tullytown police force. Three others are construction workers here. Three Parto brothers make their homes in Lakeside section here, and another will move to that section soon.

Sebastian (Ben) Parto, of 41 Lilac lane, is a sergeant, and brothers Steven, 245 Lakeside drive, and Gregory, Tullytown, are officers in the Tullytown police.

Charles Parto, of Tullytown, employed in construction here by the Hubbard Co., is a pipe construction foreman and crane operator. Working with him in pipe construction is his brother Salvy (Sam), who lives in Phila. Joseph Parto, Jr., of Bristol, drives a cement-mixer truck for the Levittown project.

James Parto, of 7 Lilac lane, operates Parto Bros. Used Cars and Parts in South Phila. Joseph, Jr., was formerly a partner with him. Frank Parto, of South Phila., has a junk yard there.

Gregory, of the police force, also operates Parto's Luncheonette, on Main street, Tullytown. His sister, Minnie Parto, assists him there. Another sister, Lucy, is married to Nick Arena, who works on the Levittown project. Mr. and Mrs. Arena will soon move from Phila. to Levittown.

Joseph Parto, Sr., father of the family, his wife, Jennie, who passed away this year, and his eldest son, Sebastian, were born in Sicily. They immigrated to Phila., where eight of the children were born. Steven Parto, the tenth and youngest, was born in Burlington, N. J.

Son Gregory, the first of the Partos to come to Bucks Co., went to work at King Farms, Pennsbury, in 1930, and made his home there. In 1933 he and his wife, Jennie, moved into a house on Main street, Tullytown, where he ran a candy store. Gregory Parto and his family will soon move to 70 Lilac lane, Levittown.

The elder Joseph Parto and his other children followed Gregory to Tullytown, and made their home on Brown street. The father formerly operated a coal yard in Phila., and had a 70-acre farm at Swedesboro, N. J. He is now retired, but sells lemonade in Tullytown in the summer.

Asthmatic XI is Taught To Live With Ailment

Denver "Miracle" Results in Lots of Fun On the Gridiron for Boys

DENVER, Oct. 30 — (INS) — It was just a bunch of kids playing football — but to parents of the young gridders, the fact their sons were playing football was a near miracle.

The boys running down punts, knocking heads in scimmage and tossing passes, by all odds should have been leading a quiet sheltered life, for this was the "Asthmatic Eleven" of the National Home for Jewish Children in Denver.

The home, only one of its kind in the United States, is a free, national center for treatment of children suffering from chronic bronchial asthma and other respiratory diseases. The institution is run on a non-sectarian basis.

Members of the "Asthmatic Eleven" squad don't look like sick kids, and they don't play football like sick kids, that's where the "miracle" part comes in.

Young gridders on the home's team short months ago were in bed, or gazing wistfully from windows as other kids in the neighborhood played baseball or kick-the-can, with little hope of ever participating.

At the home, however, under a program instituted a few years ago, young asthmatics are treated like normal youngsters and are taught to live with their ailment.

This runs counter to the usual treatment for the affliction and it drew criticism from doctors at the outset, but it is working out at the Denver institution.

Jack Gershtenson, director of the home, frankly admits the medical staff "doesn't know all the whys and wherefores" of the program's success, but adds: "In about five years, we'll be ready to present definite findings."

Gershtenson explained that about 50 percent of the cases at the home — and the institution takes only the worst ones — involve emotional disturbances.

He pointed out that the emotional disturbances often bring on asthmatic attacks, and that young asthmatics learn to "use" their affliction in the same manner as a temper tantrum.

The director said well-meaning, but uninformed parents often contribute to the emotional upsets, and that the new environment in the institution, freedom from the emotional upsets and treatment often mean a child discharged, free of asthmatic attacks for life.

Gershtenson added that in cases involving physical impairment, the child is taught to live with his affliction, and lead as normal a life as possible.

He said "self reliance" is one of the most important things a young asthmatic can be taught, and that self reliance is stressed in the institution's program.

Spectators watching the "Asthmatic Eleven" in a practice session, preparing for a tilt with one of the neighborhood sandlot teams, see only a group of rough and tumble young gridders.

None asks quarter because of his illness, and the open field runs, the slashing tackles and powerful line blocks show no lack of spirit or hint at any physical impairment.

Girls at the school, who feel sort of "left out" during football season, also have gotten into the grid act.

The girls have formed the school's own "Asthmatic Cheering Squad" and their pep and enthusiasm and animated yells cause any hint of illness to do a quick fade-out into the background.

Members of the "Asthmatic Eleven" squad don't look like sick kids, and they don't play football like sick kids, that's where the "miracle" part comes in.

Young gridders on the home's team short months ago were in bed, or gazing wistfully from windows as other kids in the neighborhood played baseball or kick-the-can, with little hope of ever participating.

At the home, however, under a program instituted a few years ago, young asthmatics are treated like normal youngsters and are taught to live with their ailment.

This runs counter to the usual treatment for the affliction and it drew criticism from doctors at the outset, but it is working out at the Denver institution.

Jack Gershtenson, director of the home, frankly admits the medical staff "doesn't know all the whys and wherefores" of the program's success, but adds: "In about five years, we'll be ready to present definite findings."

Gershtenson explained that about 50 percent of the cases at the home — and the institution takes only the worst ones — involve emotional disturbances.

He pointed out that the emotional disturbances often bring on asthmatic attacks, and that young asthmatics learn to "use" their affliction in the same manner as a temper tantrum.

The director said well-meaning, but uninformed parents often contribute to the emotional upsets, and that the new environment in the institution, freedom from the emotional upsets and treatment often mean a child discharged, free of asthmatic attacks for life.

Gershtenson added that in cases involving physical impairment, the child is taught to live with his affliction, and lead as normal a life as possible.

He said "self reliance" is one of the most important things a young asthmatic can be taught, and that self reliance is stressed in the institution's program.

Spectators watching the "Asthmatic Eleven" in a practice session, preparing for a tilt with one of the neighborhood sandlot teams, see only a group of rough and tumble young gridders.

None asks quarter because of his illness, and the open field runs, the slashing tackles and powerful line blocks show no lack of spirit or hint at any physical impairment.

Girls at the school, who feel sort of "left out" during football season, also have gotten into the grid act.

The girls have formed the school's own "Asthmatic Cheering Squad" and their pep and enthusiasm and animated yells cause any hint of illness to do a quick fade-out into the background.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

(Copyright, 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

CHICAGO, Oct. 30 — Attempts by President Truman and his captive candidate, Democratic presidential nominee, Adlai Stevenson, to blame Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for withdrawing U. S. troops from Korea prior to the outbreak of war are pathetic.

Even the great military expert, Secretary of State Dean Acheson, who apparently learned his strategy at Harvard University Law school, has joined the chorus of blame against the General. I await the final word from Gen. Harry Vaughan, the president's military advisor, whose combat scars include a wrenched back from unloading deep freezes for White House personnel.

Eisenhower and the Joint Chiefs of Staff of which he was chairman, were dealing with facts when the decision was made to concentrate Pacific defenses in Japan, Okinawa, and other bases. The facts were simple:

The president and the U. S. State Department had already handed over control of the Chinese mainland to the Communists — at Yalta and Potsdam. The Joint Chiefs of Staff, including Eisenhower, could not reverse that decision, although every military man living has wished a thousand times since that that decision could have been reversed.

Nobody at the Pentagon could overrule the White House and Acheson on the decision to hand to Russia islands and ports on the perimeter of Japan. Nobody at the Pentagon, including Eisenhower, could overrule the president on the size and shape of the armed forces. In fact, Mr. Truman, on the advice of Gen. Vaughan, apparently, slashed the U. S. Air Force in half against the wishes of congress and the Pentagon.

Eisenhower and the other military leaders worked with the tools made available to them. And any decision made in the Pentagon concerning Korea was made in the face of state department determination to oust the military from that area.

The military was ousted not on the advice of Eisenhower, the navy or the air force, but on orders from Acheson and the president.

Just to keep the record straight, now that President Truman is whistle-stopping his phony arguments across the country, it was Secretary of State Dean Acheson who ruled that the "dust must settle in China" before adequate U. S. aid could be sent there. This was in the face of demands by Lt. Gen. Albert Wedemeyer, who was on the scene, for more support for Chiang Kai-Shek.

Sincere foreign service officials and military troop leaders in Korea pleaded with the State Department for more concrete support for the South Koreans, even up to the day the Communists attacked. But Owen Lattimore, the Baltimore Bugle who plays the notes for Acheson's diplomatic dancing, ruled that South Korea must fall, "but it must not look like we pushed her."

Gov. Stevenson is at the foot-stamping stage over what he terms "Eisenhower distortions" of U. S. foreign policy, including the debacle in Korea. He seems to think that anybody who regrets the thousands of dead there, is incapable of diplomatic understanding. Maybe so, certainly the American people by and large cannot understand the diplomacy of Yalta and Potsdam, nor the mission of Gen. George C. Marshall in China when he attempted to persuade congress to equip and train 10 Chinese communist divisions as a "peace" move in China.

At the worst, Eisenhower can be accused of not anticipating the Korean war. If Stevenson, Truman and Acheson want to set themselves up as having done so, then the thousands who were slain in the surprise attack have little to thank them for.

The attack in Korea was anticipated by almost every military man on the Korean peninsula. A number of state department foreign service officers also sent in repeated warnings to the state department. None of them ever reached Eisenhower's desk. In fact, he wasn't even around the Pentagon at the time, or the White House or the State Department.

Only Acheson, Truman and Marshall were there. And we all know what they did. They dumped the load on Gen. Douglas MacArthur's shoulders and then fired him for carrying it successfully.

Since Mr. Truman thinks whistle-stopping is such fun, maybe it would enliven things if somebody would ask him, at each stop, about Yalta, Potsdam and the Marshall mission. I'd like to hear his explanation, and I'm convinced the rest of you would, too.

Carfagno Promoted To Detective Sergeant

Is Guest of Honor At Dinner Meeting of Bucks Co. Police Ass'n

MORRISVILLE, Oct. 30 — Pennsylvania State Police have announced the promotion of Detective Gene F. Carfagno, of 239 W. Bridge st., to the rank of detective sergeant. Det. Sgt. Carfagno was a guest of honor at a dinner meeting of the Bucks County Police Association Wednesday evening.

Det. Sgt. Carfagno has completed 22 years of service in the state police. He was at Langhorne substation for eight years. He is now assigned to Squadron 4, Phila.

While stationed at Langhorne, the officer worked with the Bucks County detectives' office and with police departments in many of the boroughs and townships.

Three Service Clubs To Join in Chest Campaign

Three Bristol service clubs announced today they would conduct the Bucks County Community Chest Campaign in Bristol, Tullytown and Bristol Township.

The Exchange, Lions and Rotary Clubs of Bristol disclosed that they had appointed three men who would act as co-chairmen of the drive. They are Kenneth M. Brandau, 235 Cedar st., Rotary; Warren P. Snyder, 1201 Radcliffe St., Bristol, Exchange; and Walter Rosser, 1715 Benson Place, Bristol, Lions.

In announcing their plans for the drive, Brandau, Snyder and Rosser revealed that they would each select six men from their clubs to organize the various divisions of their area. They said "this is the first time in the history of these organizations that we have combined to sponsor a project of this sort. We believe this to be a most fitting occasion for the event, as the Bucks County Community Chest is the first joint drive on the part of the leading social, health and welfare agencies in the county."

"We urge all citizens to give their generous support to this campaign," they said. "We are convinced of its worthiness, and certain of its success."

Inform of Work, Society For Crippled Children

Joel B. Davis, president of the Phila. Society for Crippled Children and Adults, and Mrs. Blanche Hann of the Public Relations Department, gave a talk on the Society at the meeting of the Bristol Rotary Club last week.

They stated that: "The Society cares for those who are physically handicapped through birth, accident or disease . . . endeavors to help these unfortunate individuals to consider themselves of value to the community—to achieve independence of action—to become self-supporting. Since its founding in 1936, and incorporation in 1937, the Society has specialized in physical restoration, vocational guidance and training, general education and recreation . . . and, most importantly . . . job placement. Its services are available to residents of Philadelphia, Delaware, Montgomery, Bucks and Chester counties. The competent professional staff assisted by volunteer workers. Financing is provided solely by the annual sale of Easter Seals . . . and by personal gifts. In facing the challenge of today's increased demands, the reliance of the Society on personal gifts is greater than ever.

"It is a private charitable organization that co-operates with but does not duplicate the work of other public or private agencies. Its only condition for aid is a valid need not otherwise provided for."

Letters To The Editor

litor, Courier:
the Taxpayers of
Bensalem Township:

I am giving you the following, a mber of points of contrast be-een a first and second class wnship form of government for ur information and study. These oints are those which show the eater expense or other points of ntrast between the two forms of overnment.

1. Second class township Supersors are paid not over $6.00 per eeting and not over 24 meetings
r year in contrast to a First class wnship which has at least five mmissioners who are paid upon population basis, $400 per year r the population of less than 00, $600 per year on population om 4000 to 10,000 and on up.

2. The Auditors in a First class wnship get $10.00 per day for 30
ys and/or a controller paid up $5,000 a year, whereas in a Sec-d class township the Auditors t $6.00 per day for not more than days or a C. P. A. whose costs all not exceed this same limit st.

3. The Tax Collector in a First ass township is also the Treas-er and gets 5% of the money ndled. The Tax Collector in a ond class township gets up to of the money handled.

4. In a First class township a ard of Health can be established
th a secretary and other officers hose salary is fixed by the Board
Commissioners. In a Second Class township this same power is given to the Board of Supervisors but merely to regulate by ordinance.

5. In a First class township a Civil Service Commission must be established for policemen. This is not true in a Second class township.

6. In First class townships a Planning Commission may be established with attended expense, whereas in a Second class township this power must be confined to the Zoning Board.

7. In a First class township there is a wide open clause permitting any employees to be employed in any capacity and salary is fixed by the Board of Commissioners. This is not true in Second class townships.

8. The general tax in a First class township has a limit of 12 mills. In a Second class township the limit is 9 mills. Special taxes—the First class township has all of the taxes as limited in Act 481; the Second class township has specific taxes in this Act limited by Act 430 of 1951.

9. In the matter of police the powers are the same in both classes but there is a greater expense in a First class township because a Civil Service Board must be established and paid for, and a pension may be established and paid for by the township.

10. The matter of Association dues to the State Association: In a First class township those dues can be up to $200 a year and the township pays for all of the delegates' unlimited expenses to the State Convention. In a Second class township the State Association dues are up to $20 and the County pays the expense of the delegate to the State Convention.

11. In the matter of insurance: township liability insurance in a First class township will cost more than 4 times as much for similar coverage of insurance in a Second class township.

The powers to function and give service to the citizens of the township are practically the same in both classes of townships. In other words, the only excuse for any township changing to a township of the First class would be to protect their borders against annexation raids. In every other respect the First class township gives added expense to taxpayers.

As above stated, the only reason for any township to change from Second to First Class under today's laws would be to protect their area from extensive damage by annexation by an adjacent borough or city, and in our case we are peculiarly situated, as the only city next to us is Philadelphia, and Philadelphia is the only city in Pennsylvania that cannot extend its boundaries and annex any part of an adjacent township except by a vote of consent of the unit of government concerned, therefore, in our case there is no logical reason for any change in status of the government. The only thing that would be accomplished would be increased governmental cost.

WILLIAM WHITE, Chairman
Board of Supervisors
